YOUTH, 19, FACES HIT-RUN CHARGE IN $300 CRASH

After checking on a license number given him by two witnesses of an accident that occurred about 10:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the intersection of Carlisle and Water streets, Borough Officer Glenn Guise this afternoon arrested Ray W. Watson, 19, 211 Chambersburg street, on a hit and run driving charge. The information was filed before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer who set bail at $500.

A car driven by Samuel Swope, 18, West Confederate avenue, was badly damaged but Swope, the only occupant, escaped injury when the car hit a telephone pole at the northwest corner of the intersection, smashed a mail box that was fastened to the pole and then came to rest against a stone wall in front of the residence of F. Mark Bream. Damage to the car was estimated at about $300.

Two Gettysburg college students who witnessed the accident told Officer Guise that Swope had been driving north on Carlisle street at a speed the driver estimated at about 25 to 30 miles an hour, and slowed as he neared the intersection.

A car entered the intersection from East Water street and is reported to have struck the rear part of the Swope car which had swerved to the left.

The students said the driver of the car which had come from Water street disregarded their shouts to stop and sped south on Carlisle street turning west on an alley near the gas company offices when the driver found Carlisle street blocked by a train on the railroad crossing.

Officer Guise was notified and began his investigation. The students gave him a license number they said they secured by chasing the fleeing driver. A check showed the license was that issued to Watson. Officer Guise said the right front fender of the Watson car shows scratch marks. Watson has denied his car struck the Swope machine, police say.

Watson was released under $500 bail for a hearing Thursday evening at 8 o'clock before Justice Shearer.

3-CAR CRASH AT YORK SPRINGS

Three cars were damaged in a double collision this morning at 10:15 o'clock in York Springs but no one was injured. Officer K. Yemzow of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police is conducting an investigation of the accident in which he said he will file a charge against Horace F. Smith, York Springs R. 1, for driving to the left of the center of the highway. Justice of the Peace F. E. Coulson, York Springs, will receive the charge.

The crash is reported to have occurred as Smith drove onto the Hanover-Carlisle highway from a service station north of the square while C. Wade Lerew, same address, approached from the center of town. Lerew braked and his car and Smith's sideswiped and the Lerew car was thrown against the parked machine of William Haar, East Berlin. The road was icy at the point where the crashes occurred.

The Lerew and Haar cars were damaged to the extent of about $5 each. Smith's damage did not exceed $1.

Woman Sought Here Is Serving Maryland Term

State motor police here have been advised that Emma C. Boyle, otherwise known as Mrs. James B. Boyle who has been sought since 1937 to answer two worthless check charges in this county, has been sentenced to serve one year in the Maryland House of Correction at Jessups. Sentence was passed last week in Baltimore.

When that sentence has been served she will be turned over to Frederick, Maryland, authorities to answer to 13 bogus check charges held against her there.

Motor police here have sent two warrants from the office of Justice of the Peace Howard G. Bocher, Littlestown, to the Maryland authorities in an effort to gain custody of the prisoner after she has answered the Maryland charges.

MRS. JACOBS, 82, HUNTERSTOWN NATIVE, EXPIRES

Mrs. Laura A. Jacobs, 82, widow of P. W. Jacobs, died this morning at 8 o'clock at her home at 112 Baltimore street from the effects of a stroke which she suffered the night of January 16. Her condition had remained serious since that time.

Mrs. Jacobs was a daughter of the late Boreas and Eliza Jane (Reaver) Deatrick and was born in Hunters-town where she spent her entire life until she moved to Gettysburg where she had since resided with two brothers.

Her husband died January 14, 1889. The deceased was a member of the Great Congregational Presbyterian church at Hunters-town.

Surviving are three brothers: Harry G. and Frank H. Deatrick, local funeral directors with whom Mrs. Jacobs resided, and Charles E. Deatrick, Biglerville.

Brief funeral services from her late home on Baltimore street Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and further services from the Great Congregational Presbyterian church at Hunters-town, the Rev. U. A. Guss, Mercersburg, supply pastor at the Hunters-town church, and the Rev. Seth C. Morrow, Gettysburg Presbyterian pastor, officiating. Interment in the Presbyterian cemetery at Hunters-town.

Baby Owes Life to Doctor Who Breathed Into Lungs for Hour

Butler, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP)—A baby boy born while his father was gone for aid owed his life today to a country doctor who breathed into his mouth for more than an hour to bring him to life.

The baby arrived earlier than expected while the mother, Mrs. Robert Zeitler, was alone in the little home in West Sunbury, near Butler. Zeitler, a pipefitter, had gone to summon a physician.

Dr. A. H. Jahn, who came to West Sunbury a year ago, arrived at the home 25 minutes after the baby was born. The baby was cold and there were no signs of life.

The doctor said he put gauze over the baby's mouth and began breathing into the baby's lungs.

Slowly and regularly he breathed for half hour, but the baby's heart was still. Neighbors who had come to the house told the physician it was no use.

But he kept on. In 45 minutes he was rewarded as the baby's heart began to flutter. Fifteen minutes later the child took its first breath, then slowly began to breathe normally.

Weak for days, the baby began gaining strength and now, three weeks old, he is healthy and normal, Doctor Jahn said.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phiel, York street, and Mrs. Roy Zinn, Hanover street, were visitors in Harrisburg this evening.

January Warmer Than Normal; Nearly 12 Inches of Snow Fall

In spite of the fact that January set the winters low temperature, the month as a whole was slightly warmer than normal while the 11 1/2 inches of snow that fell last month sent the precipitation figure also above normal, the monthly weather report of Dr. Henry Stewart, official local observer, revealed today.

There was an average excess of 3.2 degrees of temperature each day last month, although a minimum of four degrees was recorded on January 27, the coldest day of the year and of the winter. A high of 59 degrees was reached, however, on January 9 and helped account for the accumulated excess.

The average daily maximum temperature for last month was 41.6 degrees, while the average daily low reading was 24.6. The month's average reading was 33.1 degrees. The greatest range of temperatures for 24-hour periods occurred on January 14 and 27 when the mercury moved through 28 degrees each day.

The total precipitation last month was 3.29 inches, with the heavy snowfall accounting for a part of that amount. But it was on Monday, during heavy rains, that the greatest precipitation in any day of the month was registered. More than an inch and a half of rain was measured in a day. Measurable amounts of precipitation fell on 12 days last month.

There were 14 clear, seven partly cloudy and 10 cloudy days. A dense fog was noted on January 5.

WESTERN STORM TO REACH EAST BY THURSDAY

(By the Associated Press.) The snow-clogged middle west braced itself today for another winter onslaught as a storm raced across northern United States from the Rockies.

Early today the disturbance was general over the western plains states and by Thursday, the weather bureau said, the storm would be felt as far east as the Atlantic seaboard.

A strong northwest wind whipped falling snow into hard packed drifts throughout western Nebraska, eastern Wyoming, and the Dakotas. The storm, which marooned many motorists at roadside taverns, approached blizzard proportions in those states.

Rain or snow was forecast for Thursday in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, West (Continued on Page Two)

"EVANGELISM" THEME FOR C. E. ANNIVERSARY

"Evangelism" will be the theme of the celebration to be conducted by the Adams county Christian Endeavor Union marking the fifty-eighth anniversary of the founding of Christian Endeavor. The observance will be held in Trinity Lutheran church in Arendtsville, Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The program marks the anniversary of the founding the first Christian Endeavor society in Williston, Maine, by the Rev. Francis Clark. This week C. E. organizations all over the world are staging celebrations of the anniversary of that event.

The meeting in Arendtsville Thursday evening will be under the direction of Chester Starnor, county C. E. evangelism superintendent. The principal speaker will be the Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble, pastor of the Bensenville Lutheran church. Miss Nettie Rafensperger, quiet hour superintendent for the county organization, will lead the devotions and music will be under the direction of Katherine Dentler. Special musical numbers will be presented.

Members of C. E. societies in all sections of the county have been urged to attend the meeting to which the public has been invited.

10 Couples Asked Marriage Licenses During Last Month

A marriage license application filed Tuesday afternoon at the office of Clerk of the Courts Roy D. Renner at the court house brought to 10 the number of couples who applied here for permits to wed during last month. That figure shows an increase over the total of seven for January, 1938, the smallest number of applicants handled in any month last year.

One Virginia couple applying here for a license during last month never completed their application and consequently never received their marriage license. The girl was only 20 years old and could not present the necessary written consent of a parent for the application.

The couple which asked a license Tuesday was Sidney Wells Dunbee, Jr., Mount Union, and Estella Belle Null, of Newton Hamilton, Pa.

Seek New Bids for Jail's Bread Supply

After opening bids Tuesday for furnishing bread to the county jail for 1939, the county commissioners found that two county baking firms had submitted equal offers, making it necessary to ask new bids for those two concerns. The bread contract will be let at a later meeting.

Otherwise only current business matters were handled at the weekly session of the board.

A. and P. Market to Open on February 9

Announcement has been made by local officials of the Atlantic and Pacific tea company that arrangements have been completed to open the new A. and P. market on Baltimore street on Thursday morning, February 9.

The store has been moved to a room adjacent to its former location in the Plank building. The change was made following a fire that gutted the building last October.

13 HURT, 1 DIES IN 12 JANUARY AUTO ACCIDENTS

The highway accident toll for January in Adams county was considerably above the figures for the same month of last year, with an increase in the number of accidents and injuries, according to a monthly report compiled this morning by Corporal J. G. Warren of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police.

Last month there were 12 accidents in which 13 persons were injured, one fatally. In the same month last year there were only 10 accidents in which only six persons were injured. There were no fatal accidents on highways of this county last year in January.

There was a large increase, too, in the amount of damage to cars involved in the crashes. The figure jumped from $1,351 in January of last year to $2,210 for last month.

Motor police attached to the Gettysburg substation made 66 arrests in January. Last January only 33 were nabbed for motor code violations.

The arrests for last month included the manslaughter charge brought by Corporal J. G. Warren in the year's first fatal accident. Roy Unger, Aspers, R. 2, was convicted of manslaughter in court here last week and is now serving a sentence of from nine months to two years in the county jail as a result of the accident in which S. Martin McCauslin, 75, Aspers R. 2, died on January 8. The crash occurred south of here on the Emmitsburg road.

Although the accident totals for last month were above the corresponding month of last year, they showed a decrease from the December record in which 14 accidents were listed. Seventeen persons were hurt, one fatally, in that month and damage amounted to $2,987. There were 73 arrests in December.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Richard Leister, Barlow street, has been admitted as a patient to the Warner hospital. Discharges today included Mrs. Lawrence Elder and infant son, John Dubois, II, Emmitsburg; Mrs. Joseph Becker and infant son, Robert Patrick, South Washington street, and Mrs. Ross V. The estate is valued at about $5,550 in personal property and $2,250 in real estate.

FARMERS' LOANS UNDER FSA PLAN ARE EXPLAINED

Farmers in need of rehabilitation loans may make application to Clarence A. Myers, rural rehabilitation supervisor of the farm security administration, United States Department of Agriculture, 47 East Market street, York, it was announced today.

Applications for assistance may be mailed to the F.S.A. office, or farmers may apply in person on any Thursday morning, between 10 and 11 a. m. at the Gettysburg post office building on the second floor.

The farm security administration funds for rehabilitation loans to Adams county farmers, unable to obtain necessary credit from other sources for the purchase of livestock, equipment, feed, seed and other production goods, are now available for the next crop year.

"To provide for the best use of the loans, a farm based on estimated crop yields and livestock production is worked out by the borrower, with our co-operation," stated Myers. "A home plan which provides for meeting most of the food needs on the farm is drawn up by the farmer's wife, with the guidance of our home management supervisor, Miss Van Dusen. The drawing up of these plans is as essential as the funds loaned in helping the borrower to get back on his feet. Unless it is possible to work out plans which are sound and practical, and which insure repayment, rural rehabilitation loans are not made."

Where debt adjustment is necessary to place a farm on a sound basis, this service is worked out through negotiations between debtor and creditors prior to the making of the loan. Where heavy equipment and breeding stock can be more economically provide on a joint-use basis, loans will be made to groups of farmers for cooperative purchase of such facilities.

To qualify for an F.S.A. rehabilitation loan, the applicant must be a bona fide farmer unable to secure adequate commercial credit. He must be living on a productive farm capable of supporting his family and repaying the loan on the basis of an approved farm plan.

R. C. SEEKS AID FOR CHILE AREA

Following the receipt of a letter Tuesday from Norman H. Davis, national Red Cross chairman, officers of the Adams county chapter announced they will accept contributions for the aid of the survivors of the recent earthquake in Chile which killed 30,000 people and injured 50,000 others.

Through its annual membership payment to the national chapter, the Adams county chapter has shared indirectly in assistance already sent to Chile by the American Red Cross.

A direct contribution of $10,000 has been made and medical supplies, condensed foods and other supplies worth another $10,000 have already been sent, Chairman Davis reports.

The catastrophe was so great that additional help is urgently needed and a general appeal to all chapters has been made for donations. No quota has been set.

ADMITTED TO BAR

Samuel A. Schreckengaust, Jr., and Carl F. Chronister, both of Harrisburg, have been admitted to practice in the Dauphin county courts. Both are members of the class of 1935 at Gettysburg college.

U. S. WILLING TO SELL ARMS TO "FREE" NATIONS

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—A member of the senate military committee said today President Roosevelt had indicated that the United States was prepared to sell war materials not only to England and France but to other "independent states" in Europe which oppose the threat of aggression by the dictatorships.

Accounts—some in conflict with others—of what the President said to members of the committee Tuesday continued to dribble out to the press and public causing jubilation abroad in the democratic states and condemnation in Germany and Italy.

The military committeeman, who asked anonymity, said Mr. Roosevelt's discussion of this country's policy of permitting sales of airplanes to France had made it plain the President was committed to a course of allowing other nations to obtain war supplies in this country as long as they could pay cash.

The senator said the conversations had centered on the non-totalitarian countries, which he said were referred to as "independent states," and had not been confined to England and France.

One conflict of opinion over what was said concerned how far the President had gone in outlining the foreign policy involved.

One member of the committee said that as he recalled the discussion, the President had said he considered that, in the event of a world war, the frontiers of the United States would be in France.

Two other committeemen denied emphatically, however, that the President had said anything of this nature.

As details of the President's unusual conference with the committee Tuesday trickled out, his objective in expediting sale of American-made aircraft to France was disclosed to be preservation of world peace through strengthening of democracies.

He was said to have stressed to the senators, however, that any such help would be confined largely to selling planes for cash and under no circumstances would it involve backing of any European nation with force.

With 18 members of the committee gathered in a circle around him, the President was reported to have spoken plainly on the foreign and domestic policies underlying the proffered aid to a French mission in obtaining planes from private manufacturers in this country.

The senators said Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that sales of planes to foreign governments would provide employment and prepare this country for the mass production of aircraft called for in the defense program.

He then was said to have declared that the government considered it the wisest policy to aid European democracies to re-arm so that they could balk threats of war by being prepared for any eventuality.

There were strong indications, however, that the President's explanation of the government's interest in the French mission had not stilled minority criticism of the move within the committee.

The criticism took the form of protests against the secrecy which has cloaked committee investigation of the matter as well as the White House conference.

"To be sworn to secrecy at a time when there is much to be said is more distressing than you can know," Senator Nye (R-N.D.) told reporters.

While some committeemen who have been critical of the administration's moves said they were satisfied there was no proposal to create a credit here for French purchase of the planes, others said they wished to delve further into the treasury's part in the projected deal.

Nye said he had asked that Secretary Morgenthau be recalled before the committee. The committee heard last week that a representative of the French air ministry had been permitted by treasury authority to inspect the latest type of light bomber.

Mr. Roosevelt was quoted by some senators as reminding the committee that as commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy, he had authority to approve or disapprove sales to France.

Asked at his press conference whether the government would have approved sale of planes to Germany or Italy, Mr. Roosevelt said that was an "if" question. No such orders, he pointed out, have been received.

Asks N. Y. Governor to Probe Weinberg Death

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman was urged today by a Nassau county lawyer to investigate a report that the fingerprints of George Weinberg, a key witness in the retrial of Tammany district leader James J. Hines, were not found on the gun with which he allegedly committed suicide last Sunday.

"Informed reliable source that Weinberg's fingerprints are not on revolver of Dewey killing. Check. Confiscate revolver for confirmation."

Rev. Fr. Poist Buried

A solemn pontifical mass for the Rev. Fr. Pius I. Poist, native of McSherrystown who died Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's Catholic church in McSherrystown by the Most Rev. Dr. George L. Leech, bishop of the Harrisburg diocese. The priests' choir of the diocese sang the mass with the Rev. Leo J. Krichten, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church of Bonneauville, directing.

The sermon at the service this morning was delivered by the Rev. James A. Davin, rector of St. John the Baptist church, Pittsburgh. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery at McSherrystown.

The services today followed a solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of the deceased priest which was celebrated Tuesday morning in St. Andrew's Catholic church at Waynesboro where the young priest had served as assistant rector for the last two years. The body was taken to McSherrystown Tuesday afternoon where it lay in state until this morning. On Tuesday afternoon the pupils of Central Catholic high school and St. Mary's grade schools of McSherrystown assembled in the church to offer prayers for the repose of the soul of the departed priest.

The services at Waynesboro Tuesday and those at McSherrystown this morning were largely attended.

Danish Count Files Naturalization Papers

Pittsburgh, Feb. 1 (AP)—Naturalization records disclosed today Count Fritz Don Juan Frederick Bernstorff-Blennet, of Denmark, desires to become plain Fritz Bernstorff, of Oakmont, Pa., horticulturist and jack-of-all-trades.

The handsome, 33-year-old Danish nobleman explained: "I can't afford to live up to it and I want to get a job on my own merits, not because people take pity on me."

Western Storm To Reach East By Thursday

Virginia, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Colder weather was expected to follow today's rising temperatures.

A 24-hour northeast blizzard which crippled transportation and caused four deaths in Massachusetts moderated. A raging surf battered seaside homes and cottages and endangered shipping in New England waters during the period.

Thirty-nine deaths were attributed to weather conditions in the northern states east of the Mississippi.

Icy streets caused scores of minor traffic accidents in New York city. Mayor LaGuardia sought to facilitate snow removal by announcing that police would arrest motorists who left cars parked for more than an hour.

Thousands of shovellers continued their back breaking toil in Chicago. Colder weather hardened the 14.9-inch snowfall of two days ago to add to the burden. Many residential streets were still impassable.

The White river in Indiana was in flood stage as a result of snow and rain. The Wabash and Ohio rivers were expected to reach flood level by the week-end. Icy highways were blamed for a bus and truck collision which injured 36 Indiana school children and two drivers.

ROOMING HOUSE FIRE KILLS FOUR

Cleveland, Feb. 1 (AP)—Fire of undetermined origin swept through the second floor of a frame rooming house on Cleveland's west side today burning four persons to death and injuring two others seriously.

The dead were Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 23-year-old W.P.A. seamstress; her two sons, Clate, 2, and Everett, 5; and an unidentified youth about 17 years of age.

Firemen said origin of the blaze, discovered shortly before daylight, has not been determined.

The "sleeping rooms" were all taken Tuesday night, the proprietor, Mrs. Julia Fisher, said. She was unable to account for the presence of the dead youth who was not registered.

Shippensburg at Mechanicsburg.

In one of the most exciting games played on the local court in years and which kept the near capacity crowd in an uproar from start to finish the Gettysburg high school cagers stepped back into the championship picture of the Southern Pennsylvania scholastic league by defeating the hitherto undefeated Hershey high quintet 26-22 Tuesday evening.

The Maroons played one of their best games of the season and led the invaders throughout the better part of the game although three times Hershey took small leads.

Although each local participant put up a nice game the honors went to Don Fissel and Bill Everhart who played sensational ball throughout the entire game. Each lad contributed eight points as well as playing fine defensive games.

Fissel sunk a twin pointer shortly after the game opened to send the Maroons out in front. Another goal by Fissel was followed by one by Black. Both teams battled furiously at a rapid pace in the first period which ended 9-6 in favor of the locals. Strong defensive work in the second period kept the scoring low but a long shot by Wright and Oyle's tap-in shot enabled the Forney-men to hold a 13-11 advantage at half time.

Hershey Spurs
Hershey came back strong in the third frame and pushed into an 18-15 lead when Black went on a mild scoring spree.

The last period was one of the most furiously fought and exciting seen here in a long time. Gettysburg pulled up to make the score 18-18 but Seavers made good on a pair of fouls to send Hershey into the lead again 20-18. Goals by Everhart and Myers and a foul by Bucher sent the Maroons ahead 23-20 with less than three minutes to play. Black looped a goal to bring the count to 23-22. Everhart was fouled and looped a shot and in the last seconds of play Bucher tapped in a shot to sew up the contest.

The Maroon and White scrubs put on a brilliant passing and shooting performance to defeat the Hershey reserves in the preliminary tilt 29-21.

Lebanon Valley, 36; Muhlenberg, 35.

An old jinx cropped up again Tuesday evening when Albright's hitherto victoryless basketball team dealt a stunning 38-36 setback to the Gettysburg college cage team in a league game played at Reading.

The defeat halted a seven-game winning streak for the Bullets and pushed them down into second place in the league race.

Brilliant goal tossing by Czaikoski, Albright forward, proved the downfall of the Bream-men. The Lion forward accounted for no less than 17 points during the evening. Johnny Yovicsin looped 12 points to pace the locals while Harry O'Neill was good for 10 tallies.

The first half was a nip and tuck affair which ended at 20-all. Albright held the lead through the better part of the second half although twice the Bullets tied the count. A pair of fouls by O'Neill in the last minute of play tied the score at 36-apiece but Thorpe looped a short shot with 45 seconds of play remaining to give Albright its first victory of the season after five straight setbacks.

ARENDTSTVILLE WINS ELEVENTH

The undefeated Arendtsville vocational school boys' cage team won its eleventh straight victory Tuesday evening by defeating Boiling Springs high at Arendtsville 45-36.

Coach Charles Smith's outfit took an early lead due to the goal tossing of Bushey, M. Raff and Thomas. At half time the upper countains led 25-13.

In the preliminary game the Arendtsville girls won their eighth start in 11 games by defeating the Boiling Springs maids 27-14. Arendtsville was forced to come from behind to win, trailing 12-11 at half time. In the last half Boiling Springs could secure but a pair of fouls so stiff was the Arendtsville defense.

Arendtsville will play at East Berlin on Friday in county league games.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

STRANGE!

SEVERAL years ago, in my book browsing I came across a little book called "Success," by R. B. Cunningham Graham. I bought and read it—again and again. I had discovered a master of great prose. Then I searched for other of his books until I had gathered over 30 of them—all fine. One, however, called Mogheb-el-Acksa, describing his trip to Morocco, and his intimate contact with Arab life, is one of the best travel books I ever read. It was published in 1898, and is now a very rare book in its first edition.

A few years ago the Viking Press in New York thought this was a good book and brought out a fine edition—but, as in the first place, nobody bought it! I am just an average lover of good literature, and no scholar, yet I challenge anyone to lead me to a better book of travel. Why didn't it sell?

Those who take pride in good printing and fine books owe a great deal to Bruce Rogers, one of the most sincere and artistic designers of books America has produced. In 1928, Yale University honored him with the degree of M.A. A friend suggested to his own Alma Mater, Purdue University, that they should thus honor him—but the reply was that they had never heard of him!

I have just finished reading a volume of short stories by John Steinbeck called "The Long Valley." Here is an artist in the "A" class. Most of these stories have been published in one place or another before, but little attention was paid to this writer until his little book "Mice and Men" came out and from it a play was produced. A space of about ten years of waiting for recognition. Now there is a scramble for the first issues of his earlier works—but those who have them want to keep them! To call John Steinbeck a genius is only faint praise. He writes from inside his characters' hearts.

Another writer who will some day come into his own is Conrad Richter. His beautiful book "The Sea of Grass" is an American poem, written in matchless prose. Together with his earlier book of short stories, "Early Americana and Other Stories," he paints an unforgettable picture of the Southwest.

Dale Carnegie wrote a book telling people how to get along with one another and how to say nice things so that people would like them and do business with them—but something like a million people bought the book—but his best book is his "Lincoln, the Unknown," which I have read twice and will read again. It is the best short, vivid story of Lincoln that I know anything about.

The Characters

Peter Mallone: A cub reporter in London.Petronella: His loyal young sister.James Randall: Their childhood friend.Yesterday: Peter tackles his new job.

Chapter 13

Life in London

Petronella, helped by her friend, Marigold Earnshaw, found a three-room apartment. She took it on a year's lease. She hung cheap, bright chintz curtains, which she had made herself. She covered their divan beds with the same cheering flower-garden material. Peter helped hammer the nails, and hang their pictures and retain the shabby floors. Petronella knew that it was small, poky, and in need of redecoration, but it was the best they could afford without being an unreasonable burden on Aunt Maisie. She loved it dearly. She felt a fine feeling of possession. It was her first individual home.

Throughout the early summer, they lived as sociably as they could afford. Freedom was new to them. Peter's first misgivings with regard to his job were gradually calming. They changed gradually, to an arrogant impatience, as he mastered it. Once more, the devil of restlessness, and boredom, and ambition to press forward, consumed Peter whenever he left himself time to think. "I can't go on doing this sort of thing much longer. Take today! Find out how Mrs. Smith has been spending the money she won in the Irish Sweepstakes! Triplets at Hoxton! A centenarian (toothless old fool) in Putney. Look at the real headlines. Spain, Russia, Germany, the economic crisis—the things that are really happening in the world!"

To escape the depression of discouragement, he filled the apartment with his friends, at all hours of day, and night. They had less sleep than ever before. She found it hard to learn her shorthand, and pass her tests. The largest item of Petrel's housekeeping bill was beer. A smell of stale tobacco smoke seemed to hang permanently in the sitting-room.

One of the most regular visitors was Marigold Earnshaw. Marigold was engaged to the only son of Charrod's Universal Stores. He was a wealthy, weak-faced, but presentable young man.

"He's a very good pilot," Marigold told her. "He proposed to me in mid-air. In his beautiful blue cabin monoplane." "You sound as if you accepted the monoplane!" She brought this flying lance to the flat, once. But Jeremy Charrod preferred amusing himself in more exalted places. A gas fire, beer, and conversation, soon palled on him.

But Marigold did not cease coming. She came alone.

One night, Peter followed her into the bedroom, where she had left her coat. He caught her in his arms, and held her.

"Marigold, don't go yet. Come back. The sitting-room won't be the same without your copper head gleaming in the firelight. I've been staring at it; and at you, in that dress. I shall miss you terribly." She wrenched herself away. She was trembling.

She laughed at him. She put on a little black hat, with a veil. "I shouldn't have thought red hair was much attraction to you, carrots!"

"It oughtn't to be." His arm went around her.

"Honestly, Peter, I must go. I don't want to. The nicest people on earth come to your parties. But Jeremy will be waiting."

He released her like a hot plate. "Damn Jeremy!"

Romantic Fools

Marigold stopped laughing. They stood looking at one another. She had beautiful eyes. They were deeper blue than Peter's, between dark lashes. Now they were startled, lustrous, and frightened, like a child's.

"You've had an awful lot of beer, Peter."

From the way Marigold's lovely, unwise lips said it, she wanted to hear his denial. He could, if he liked, prevent her ever going anywhere with Jeremy Charrod again. He could take her in his arms now, and kiss the reason out of her.

But the contrast between the Charrod money and his present salary was chastening. He wrenched his glance away from Marigold's face.

"Yes I have. I'm drunk! Sorry! Good night."

She did not understand the abrupt change in him. Women were romantic fools, he thought. If he had let her, she would have thrown Jeremy over, gaily. For what? For nothing! And later, she'd have blamed him for it, most likely.

She drew herself up with the frame of her silver fox collar.

"I'm afraid after all, I shan't be able to come next Wednesday."

Even if she hadn't any brains, he would find it hard to forget the way she looked at him.

When they had all gone, he slumped into a chair. Petrel was emptying ash-trays. She turned, and stood looking down at him inquiringly.

"Feeling dejected, somehow," he groaned.

"Because you're wasting time, and you know it. Peter, they're darlings, but we give too many parties. Now that you know they won't fire you from the News, all your enthusiasm and interest in the job has gone. You're always grumbling. But are you sure you're fitted for anything else?"

"How can I tell, unless I have the chance to try?"

"I don't think you'll have the chance, until you're fit to take it. Tony Lance and most of the war correspondents speak three or four languages. You speak Russian well, French passably. You ought to learn more German, then Spanish."

"But I could never do that. It takes years to become a foreign correspondent. Languages are awful."

"You might not need to speak fluently, for some jobs abroad. Though I believe you'd soon learn. You're quick at them. But at least ask Rowdon if there is any possibility of an opening, if you do work tremendously hard. How is he to know you are seething with ambition? You scarcely ever speak to him, and you don't tell him."

He sat still for a second, then bounded to his feet. He walked straight to the door.

"Where are you going?"

"To ask him, now! He works late. He'll be there!"

He was back within an hour.

When she heard Rowdon's answer, Petronella was content. It conveyed a promise. "Go right ahead. You never know. We could probably use you," he had said. It brought bright new hope to Peter. Thereafter, it was her task to foster it. He started at once on a German course. She went with him, to see that he did not miss classes.

I Love You

Gradually, as June changed into July, the interest of people, and parties, became less of a temptation. Casual visitors, ashamed at finding them working, waited to be invited.

Also, the financial situation was curbing gaiety. When men met, they talked of the alarming withdrawal of foreign funds from Germany; of the Communist riots in the Ruhr. Of the world-wide deficits facing other countries, and of the budget deficit facing Great Britain.

"I just don't understand what has happened to all the money?" said Petronella, in bewilderment.

She read her daily paper with this same feeling of numbed understanding, and helpless fear. "I must try to understand it," she told herself fiercely, wrestling with the names of Chinese provinces, war lords, Communist leaders, governors, and generals.

There was a military rebellion in the north, she gathered. But beyond that, it was a constantly changing story of banditry, flood, famine, and rebellion. Tony Lance was still in China.

It was a fiercely exhausting summer for Petrel. They went to a German class on Thursdays, and Spanish conversation lessons on Tuesday nights. The other evenings, whenever Peter was at home, they sat on either side of the table in the sitting-room, hearing one another's verbs, reading Russian. As the summer advanced, London became close, and stifling.

The economic crisis broke at the beginning of August. Gold was flowing out of Britain. The emergency was so grave, that the Economic Committee of the Cabinet sat all day, in Downing Street, discussing a means of balancing the budget. Petronella and Peter went on working. They took their books to the park, and sat there till it grew dark.

It seemed to Petronella that she was always stiff from sitting, and weary from learning. James provided her only real escape to pleasure. In June, Aunt Maisie had chaperoned her in Cambridge for two of the May week balls. She had danced till daylight, in a great beflowered marquee. On alternate Friday evenings, James came to town in his small sports car. He took her to dinner, a theater, or to dance.

"It isn't any life for a girl, working as you do," James told her. She defended Peter against his implication, quickly.

"I went out to Burma half-educated. 'I'm finishing in London, instead of Paris, or Lausanne, that's all."

"You wouldn't be expected to learn anything in a finishing school, or take examinations, or do the cooking, and washing up. You're looking tired."

"It's only for a little while. It will be worth it, eventually. He will speak Russian, French, German, and Spanish, moderately well, and I shall speak them badly. Peter is quick at languages, James! He'll also understand the political troubles of the world, and the gold standard."

After their Friday evenings together, they drove to Sussex, through the fresh country air. James would kiss her, restrainedly, when she said good night. On this particular evening, he held her for a minute longer. It was a warm September night. The garden was filled with the scent of Aunt Maisie's roses. They stood on the doorstep, facing one another.

"Does this career business come first, and love a poor second?" he asked. "I've been meaning to tell you for a long time that I love you, Petrel."

REPUBLICANS CLAIM VOTES TO CONFIRM PAIR

Harrisburg, Feb. 1 (AP)—Republican senate leaders, trying to line up enough votes to confirm two of the governor's cabinet appointments held up by democrats, expressed confidence today they would have all they need when the senate reconvenes next week.

"I think that by next Monday night there'll be at least 34 votes for Adams and Hamilton," said Republican Floor Leader G. Mason Owlett. That number is required for approval of nominations.

For three weeks the democrats have blocked confirmation of bald, stocky Major Lynn G. Adams as motor police commissioner, and Sheriff William J. Hamilton, Jr., of Philadelphia, as secretary of Revenue.

Further attempts at confirmation were held off until next week, after democratic senators, in caucus Tuesday, announced they would not vote for the appointees of Governor Arthur H. James. The remainder of the governor's cabinet has been approved.

Owlett said later, however, he had been informed by "several democrats" that seven of their party would vote for confirmation. One democrat, William J. Eroe, previously announced he would go along with the republicans.

Owlett said he understood Dr. George Woodward (R-Philadelphia), would not return until February 19 from a vacation in Jamaica. Even with Woodward's absence, Owlett predicted, the republicans would have "at least" the required number of votes.

Adams Tuesday heard his tactics in handling strikes denounced by CIO leaders as "brutal." He retorted they were "half-truths."

The veteran state policeman declared, after hearing several labor leaders' protests to the senate executive nominations committee against his appointment:

"If I am not confirmed it is because I endeavored to maintain the law. No commissioner ever appointed."

PURPOSE

Merely to live; to eat; to sleep; To plan and toil for "get and keep" Never seem quite enough. Always Man seeks some truer words of praise Than "strong" or "clever." Through his mind Runs deep the thought: he would be kind.

The world would urge him to be great; Offers command of town and state And power and wealth and hours of ease, But these not wholly seem to please. Man still, before the day he dies, Often for something nobler tries.

The goal of all he fancies best Is not alone by gain expressed. There must be, ere the labors end, Those who are proud to call him friend, For every man would leave behind Some memories here that he was kind.

The senate, delaying its session while the hearing was on, later approved a $400,000 transfer of liquor license funds for relief. After debate between Owlett and democratic Floor Leader Harry Shapiro, and quit until 9 p. m. next Monday.

Assistance Secretary Howard L. Russell said Tuesday's transfer coupled with last week's $12,000,000 appropriation, the $14,000,000 remaining of the $26,000,000 borrowed from motor funds, and a new appropriation bill to be introduced next week, would assure continuance of care for the needy.

The house awaiting senatorial action which failed to develop on two more fund-transfer measures, received a new flood of proposed legislation.

Outstanding among the proposals was one by David T. Denman (R-Westmoreland) to place before the voters again a constitutional amendment which would permit graduated state income and other taxes. Voters turned thumbs down on the idea in 1937.

Hiram G. Andrews (D-Cambria) offered a measure to remove the restriction which prevents a candidate from seeking office as the nominee of more than one party.

Flashes of Life

By
 The Associated Press

MARKSMAN

Philadelphia — A man with a bottle of liquor in his hand sped down a street, pursued by Patrolman John Lynch. Lynch fired a shot into the air. The runner dropped his bottle, and it smashed on the pavement. He stopped abruptly. "Gosh," he said as Lynch approached, "if I'd known you could shoot so straight I wouldn't have run."

STOWAWAY

New Lisbon, Ind. — Stormy weather drove birds of a different feather together here. Mrs. George Van Buskirk saw a robin fly away from a fence near her farm house and head for the chicken house in a stiff wind. Later she went out to gather eggs. Under the wing of a nesting hen she found the robin huddled.

LET 'EM COME

Tulsa, Okla. — Henry Armstrong stuff: W. R. Amiot of Miami, Oklahoma, wants to enter Buddy Kelly in 147, 160, 175-pound and heavyweight classes in the north-east Oklahoma golden gloves tournament. "His fighting name is Flash. He weighs 141 pounds, will fight anyone under 200 pounds. Is he acceptable?" Amiot wrote. Golden gloves officials were impressed but limited Flash to his own weight division.

MAN-EATER

Los Angeles — G. Harold Janeway has three stitches in his wrist to prove he was bitten by a man-eating shark in a hotel lobby. The 25-foot fish was a skeleton on exhibition. Janeway stuck his hand into its mouth. The jaw snapped shut and seven rows of sharp teeth did their work.

COLD STATISTICS

Chicago — Chicago's Monday snowfall put some statistically-minded persons to work and the results were gigantic and almost incredible. All the snow which fell on the 202 square miles of the city (149 inches) piled on an area the size of the loop (156 acres) would make a pyramid 3,210 feet high. If the 269,146,092 cubic yards of snow covering the city were put on the scales they would register 22,877,418 tons.

FITTING BACKGROUND

Tilton, Ill. — Two men grabbed Franklin Jacks as he stepped to the street after closing the store he manages. They robbed him of $25. The name of the store which Jacks had just closed — "Grab-It-Here."

DEMONSTRATES TYPING

George L. Hossfield, Englewood, New Jersey, a world's champion speed typist, gave a 40-minute exhibition at Biglerville high school Tuesday. His record was set at 135 five-stroke words for a period of one hour. Twenty-five pupils of the Arendtsville vocational school, accompanied by William Whitely, attended the demonstration.

NO DRIVING

York, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP)—Richard F. Hoecke, 17 and jobless, owns an automobile. But if he drives that car, or any other during the next year, he is to be brought into court and sent to jail. That's the decree of a judge before whom Hoecke pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing gasoline.

North Carolina cultivated three per cent less land in 1938 than in 1937.

ANTI-MARTIN camp of the United Auto Workers' Union executive board elected K. J. Thomas (above) "acting president" until a convention in Cleveland March 20. Thomas, a vice president, had been ousted by Pres. Homer Martin.

WANT LIQUOR LAWS APPLIED

Harrisburg, Feb. 1 (AP)—"Better enforcement" of liquor laws was urged today by the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon league, embarking on a new 11-point program for "liquor control."

The league's executive committee told Governor James Tuesday it would support his policy of reducing the number of saloons and exercising more rigid control over liquor licenses.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, re-elected superintendent of the league, said that in the last year "liquor sales in Pennsylvania have been reduced about $8,000,000 and automobile accidents have dropped in practically the same proportion."

The league's program advocated that "all liquor legislation be combined in one code; that liquor licenses be refused roadhouses; that the election code be amended to provide for the conducting of local option elections; that the liquor control board and the legislature take definite steps to eliminate the club evil, including the one-man club and better regulation of the authorized clubs."

Another recommendation was that "when a community votes out liquor the board should cease to operate its state liquor stores in that community at the end of the license year."

Groundhog to Look

For Shadow Thursday

Thursday will be Candlemas day, which means that the grizzled weather superstition bringing the groundhog into the calendar on that day will be revived.

The unique superstition is so old that its origin is lost in antiquity. The belief that the groundhog comes out of his hibernating sleep on Candlemas day, ventures above ground, sees his shadow or doesn't see it and that winter hangs on late or breaks up early, is widespread in every country of the north temperate zone. It even extends into the Arctic.

Incidentally, the weather forecast for Thursday calls for snow or rain.

Workers Climb 20 Floors As Elevators Are Stopped

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—Hundreds of workers in the mid-town garment district arrived in their offices a little short of breath this morning due to a strike of elevator operators and other building service employees. James J. Bambrick, president of the building service employees international union, said about 4,000 employees were out. Many of the affected buildings are 20 stories or more high. Bambrick said 500 buildings in the garment district would be involved.

Representatives of two employer groups contended they could not afford extra costs entailed in meeting the union's demand for a 40-hour week.

W.P.A. WORKERS TELL OF PARTY CONTRIBUTIONS

Albuquerque N. M., Feb. 1 (AP)—A shabby parade of day-laborers filed before a federal jury here today to testify that their meager W.P.A. wages fed a political campaign chest through the purchase of "dance tickets," which they bought or they were dropped from New Mexico relief rolls. The witnesses testified against several of 35 defendants, many of them high in state democratic party ranks, who are charged with conspiring to defraud the United States government through political manipulation of the state's W.P.A.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—The stock market relinquished part of the gains it scored in a two-day rally, then made a firm stand today as the early selling dried up. Although moderate losses were in the majority, the market near midday had settled almost to a standstill after emerging from the selling flurry and recouping some of the lost ground.

CONGRESS WILL START HEARINGS ON AID SYSTEM

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—Expansion of the social security system was added today to the list of administration proposals on which congress actively is getting down to work.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, head of the social security board, was called as the first witness at hearings before the house ways and means committee. He was asked to discuss in detail the administration recommendations for:

1. Liberalizing and speeding up old age insurance payments.
2. Extending old age insurance to several million more workers.
3. Providing for disability insurance and for aid to widows and orphans.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) said the hearings would be open not only to social security advocates but also to old age pension proponents. Chief among the latter are Dr. Francis E. Townsend, originator of the $200-a-month pension plan, and officials of the general welfare association.

The house was called to decide whether a special committee to study government reorganization should be renewed at this session.

In the senate, committees were called into session to consider a "cost of production" farm plan and the President's attempt to revive the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy power project.

The senate judiciary committee was confronted with an intra-party fight over confirmation of Floyd Roberts, appointed a federal judge in Virginia over the objections of the state's senators.

The $725,000,000 relief bill was before the house for final action, with only the question of W.P.A. wage differentials remaining to be settled.

to fascism's black-shirt fighters in Spain and reviewed 20,000 fascist militiamen today without indicating on what front they might fight again.

Il Duce refrained from saying even a few words to his followers as he distributed medals to the survivors of Spanish and Ethiopian war dead in services at the great national monument beside the Piazza Venezia and later watched the troops march past.

The events were in observance of the 16th anniversary of the fascist militia's organization.

While a brief speech had been expected by many, the lack of one occasioned no great surprise. Diplomatic quarters in the past few days have come to the belief that Premier Mussolini would mark time until the end of the Spanish war before giving any official indications of what plans he might have — plans which
